Nutcrackers Have Origins Deep in Human History

Nuts have been a staple of the human diet for millennia and where there are nuts, so there are also nutcrackers.

Nutcrackers, today one of the symbols of Christmas, have a long evolution from simple stones to elaborate, and mostly decorative, figurines.

The oldest existing metal nutcrackers were made about 300 BC and were levers. By the 13th century, iron and brass nutcrackers began to take on shapes, and after the 15th century, wood carvers began to make lovely, intricate figures.

The colorful wooden soldier figures were first seen in the Erzgebirge regions of Germany during the 1800s. In 1872, Wilhelm Friedrich Fächtner, known as the "father of the nutcracker," initiated the first mass production of nutcrackers in the shape of human figures. Sometimes those figures were of real people such as queens and kings. That tradition continues today when you can buy nutcrackers wryly made into the likeness of politicians.

Nutcrackers became associated with Christmas during the Victorian era when children began to receive small nutcrackers in their Christmas stockings.

Today, their popularity has been enhanced by the traditional performances of Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" ballet during the Christmas season.

While some decorative nutcrackers can still crack nuts, most are decorative pieces brought out as the tree goes up and the wreath goes on the door.

Sales Tips: Creating an Effective Email Campaign

Small businesses can use email to drive sales, but competing for customer time and getting past spam requires five basic strategies.

1. Marketers must assume that customers will open an email on a mobile device. According to CMSwire.com. This wasn't always true. Just seven years ago or so, customers probably first viewed email from their computer email using a service like Outlook. But all that has changed. Today it is essential that emails be optimized for mobile viewing.

2. Email is a more intimate form of communication than pay-per-click advertising since prospects have already expressed interest in a product or service. Marketers should treat email as a way to forge new connections with prospects, offering special access to information or unique deals.

3. Subject lines must be lively. Don't overpromise. Don't create click bait that leads to a phony result. Instead, create calls to action to engage the audience. Email newsletters are part of this. The worst possible subject line for an email newsletter is November Newsletter. Tell people why they should open the email.

4. Take note of open rates over time and use the information to plan your campaign.

5. Compare open and click rates to the campaign objectives. Open and click rates for emails intended to generate sales will be different from those intended to reinforce brand identity. Be sure to segment your email list to identify those prospects who are interested in a sale.

Wishing You Joy and Peace!

It's common these days to complain during the holidays about how commercialized the season has become. In fact, complaining about the holidays has become as much of a tradition as the holidays themselves.

Well let's break tradition for a moment.

Call it commercial if you want, but when your family members gather around the Christmas tree, each one hopes the gift he gives delights the receiver. Call it commercial, but when you light the last candle of the menorah and give the last gift, you hope you have given light and joy.

We are hoping this year you'll enjoy the fruits of all your good work for the year. You are appreciated by your family, your employers and your nation.

So this year, maybe we should complain less, delight in giving more, and then open our hearts and be thankful for the season -- maybe a little commercial but also a lot of fun. Here's hoping you'll be joyous!

The Adventurer and the Christmas Flower

Born to wealth in South Carolina in 1779, Joel Roberts Poinsett rejected the life of a southern aristocrat and, instead, traveled the world becoming an expert in foreign affairs and an amateur botanist, bringing to North America the lovely flower now known as a poinsettia.

His travels spanned hot spots in Europe, Asia, and South America. In 1806 in Baku, Azerbaijan, Poinsett speculated that pools of petroleum might be used for fuel. In Persia, he told a great Khan about the United States and President Thomas Jefferson. In Russia, he told the empress that her country could not industrialize so long as serfs worked for free, though as a plantation owner he presumably had slaves. He later led an abolition movement.

Then in 1825, Poinsett, an avid botanist visited Taxco del Alarcon, south of Mexico City. There he saw for the first time the lovely, winter-blooming Flor de Noche Buena, or Christmas flower. He sent samples back to the States where the flower immediately became popular. By 1836, the plant the Aztecs called cuetlaxochitl had another name: Poinsettia.

Although Poinsett was famed in his own time for military, diplomatic and domestic accomplishments, it is the Christmas flower for which he is commonly remembered today.

Christmas Eve Tourtiere is the Toast of Canadian Tables

Tourtiere, or meat pie, is a traditional part of French Canadian Christmas and New Year's Eve fare, although the dish is enjoyed throughout Canada.

Like many traditional dishes, the exact ingredients vary by family with recipes handed down throughout generations.

Typically, the meat pie consists of tiny cubes of pork, veal and beef, slow cooked and served in a pie shell. Meats very often differ based on availability by location. You'll find fish served in some meat pies in coastal areas, for example.

Spices also vary. Some tourtieres feature a festive spice combination of cinnamon, cloves and all spice. Others feature sage and thyme, or a combination of spices.

This recipe from hiddenponies.com features ground pork plus bread crumbs. Many recipes call for mashed potatoes instead of bread crumbs.

Ingredients

1 tablespoon vegetable oil	1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 pounds ground pork	1/2 teaspoon summer savory or thyme
1 1/2 cups beef stock	1/3 teaspoon cloves, ground
3 onions, finely chopped	1 cup bread crumbs
3 cloves garlic, minced	1/2 cup fresh chopped parsley
2 cups finely sliced mushrooms	Pastry for a double crust 9-inch pie
1 cup finely chopped celery	1 egg, beaten
3/4 teaspoon salt	1 teaspoon water
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

In large skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat and cook pork, breaking it up, until no longer pink. Drain fat.

Stir in stock, onions, garlic, mushrooms, celery, salt, cinnamon, pepper, savory and cloves. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer 45 minutes or until 2 tablespoons of liquid remains. Stir in bread crumbs and parsley.

Refrigerate to allow the flavors to meld.

Spoon filling into bottom shell, situated in deep pie plate or iron skillet. Cover meat mixture with top pastry and press edges to seal. Cut vents in top crust.

Brush top crust with egg and water.

Bake at 375 for 40 to 45 minutes or until golden brown. Let cool at least 10 minutes before serving.

What to Do When an Investment Performs Poorly

People often think their homes and other possessions are worth more than they are.

According to the Journal of Economic Perspectives, that's why sellers of cars or homes usually ask a higher price than buyers are willing to pay for the property. It's called the 'endowment effect.'

From an investment standpoint, the tendency to hold on to things too long can cause problems, and the endowment effect is responsible for the poor decisions of many people.

With personal investments, Charles Schwab recommends taking the time to ask a few questions about an investment that is performing poorly.

First, determine if you would repurchase the stock at the current price.

Second, decide if the original rationale for buying the stock, such as a competitive advantage or unique strategy, still exists.

Third, look around for better options and consider reallocating the money to the better prospects. The best advice is just not to get overly attached to a portfolio.

The key is: If it no longer works, let it go.

Shop Car Insurance Rates

Car insurance rates vary significantly by insurer. Instead of sticking with your insurance company out of habit or convenience, you could save hundreds of dollars by simply shopping around.

Certain websites make shopping rates easy. Compare premiums at InsuranceQuotes.com or look for an independent agent at TrustedChoice.com, according to Kiplinger's Personal Finance.

If you do find a better rate, call your current agent. The company might offer to match the lower rate.

In 2018, You Can Contribute More to Your 401(k)

There's good news for 401(k) savers in 2018: They can put $500 more into their plan.

The IRS has announced that the 401(k) contribution limit has been raised to $18,500. That is the first increase since 2015.

The new limit also applies to 403(b), Thrift Savings Plan and 457 plans.

The limit on catch-up contributions for employees age 50 and over remains the same at $6,000.

The deduction phase-out limit was also increased. This means that if your Modified Adjusted Gross Income exceeds certain ranges, the amount you can deduct is reduced (or phased out).

Single taxpayers: The phase out is $63,000 to $73,000, up from $62,000 to $72,000.

Married filing jointly: Phase out rises to $101,000 to $121,000, up from $99,000 to $119,000.

Individual contributors: The phase out range rises to $189,000 to $199,000, up from $186,000 to $196,000.

Roth IRA and traditional IRAs. There was no change in contribution limits for IRA and Roth IRA plans. The maximum you can contribute to a Roth IRA is $5,500 per year (or $6,500 if you are age 50 or older).

There was a change to deduction phaseouts, though. If your Modified Adjusted Gross Income exceeds certain ranges, the amount you can deduct is reduced (or phased out). In 2018, the phase-out levels are higher. For singles or heads of households, the Modified Adjusted Gross Income range is $120,000 to $135,000. For married couples filing jointly, the range is $189,000 to $199,000. The phase-out ranges for married filing separately have not changed.
